

Prof. Hui-Nien Hung / Institute of Statistics

Mathematical Statistics, Industrial Statistics

Variables selection (feature selection) for high dimensional data is a very important problem in various scientific field, including biological, industrial and medical study. The purposes of variable selection including (1) improving the prediction performance (2) providing a better understanding of the data. My research including effective variable selection and group variable selection.